Acute coronary syndrome Anna Holm, 2019-01-04 BACKGROUND Bleeding complications increase mortality in patients with acute coronary syndrome ACS. Potential gender difference in bleeding regarding prevalence location severity and prognostic impact is still controversial and not well investigated. In regard to this aspect the relevance of triple antithrombotic therapy TAT is questioned. There is an ongoing debate on the clinical implications of TAT and furthermore assumed that bleeding complications except impact on outcome also are associated with great influence on health economy. The main focus of this thesis was to further investigate the incidence and impact of bleeding complications in patients treated for ACS with special reference to gender disparities TAT and health economics. The thesis will highlight the importance of improved bleeding prevention strategies for both men and women. METHOD Paper I II and III Observational studies from the SWEDEHEART register. In paper I we investigated patients hospitalised with myocardial infarction MI during 2006-2008. Outcomes were in hospital bleedings in hospital mortality and one year mortality in hospital survivors. In paper II all patients with MI in the County of Östergötland Sweden during 2010 were included and followed for one year. The patients' medical records were evaluated in relation to short and long term bleeding complications bleeding location withdrawal of platelet inhibiting drugs and nonfatal MI and death. Paper III included all patients discharged with TAT in the County of Östergötland 2009-2015. Information about bleeds and ischemic complications during one year follow up were retrieved from the medical records. Estimation of the health care costs associated with bleeding episodes were added to the evaluation. Paper IV Patients with MI scheduled for coronary angiography were recruited. All patients received clopidogrel and aspirin. A subgroup of patients received GP IIb IIIa inhibitor. Outcomes were platelet aggregation assessed at several time points using a Multiplate impedance aggregometer.

measurement of P selectin in plasma evaluation of high residual platelet reactivity HRPR and low residual platelet reactivity LRPR respectively and incidence of bleeding complications A comparison between women and men was performed RESULTS Paper I A total number of 50 399 patients were included 36 6% women In hospital bleedings were more common in women 1 9% vs 3 1% p

Pediatric Hepatology and Liver Transplantation Lorenzo

D'Antiga,2019-04-29 This book is the first to provide balanced examination of both pediatric liver disease and liver transplantation two topics that are inherently related given that most chronic liver disorders eventually require organ replacement. The different forms of liver disease encountered in the pediatric age group are first discussed in a series of disease specific chapters that have a reader friendly uniform structure covering pathophysiology diagnostic and treatment algorithms clinical cases and transition to adult care. Key topics in the field of liver transplantation are then addressed. Examples include indications and contraindications surgical techniques and complications immunosuppression in pediatric liver transplantation acute and chronic rejection and allograft dysfunction and CMV and EBV infection in transplant recipients long term graft injury and tolerance. A section on pediatric hepatology across the world includes chapters presenting the features and management of pediatric liver disease in South America Africa and Asia. A closing section considers what the future holds for pediatric liver disease and its management including novel genetic testing cell therapy and gene therapy. Pediatric Hepatology and Liver Transplantation will be of value for a range of practitioners from residents making their first approach to pediatric liver disease through to specialists working in transplantation centers.
