Realer Than Reel David Hogarth, 2009-11-20 Television and globalization have transformed the traditional documentary almost beyond recognition converting what was once a film genre devoted to public service and education into a popular televisual commodity with productions ranging from serious public affairs programming to TV reality shows and docusoaps Realer Than Reel offers a state of the art overview of international documentary programming that investigates the possibilities documentary offers for local and public representation in a global age as well as what actually constitutes documentary in a time of increasing digitalization and manipulation of visual media David Hogarth focuses on public affairs nature and reality shows from around the world drawing upon industry data producer interviews analyses of selected documentary programs and firsthand observations of market sites He looks at how documentary has become a transnational product through exports co ventures and festival contacts how local and regional place is represented in global documentary especially by producers such as Discovery Networks International and the National Geographic Channel how documentary addresses the needs of its viewers as citizens through public service broadcasting and how documentary is challenging accepted conventions of factuality sense and taste The concluding chapter considers the future of both documentary as a genre and television as a global factual medium asking whether TV will continue to document the world in any meaningful sense of the term Reality TV Susan Murray, Laurie Ouellette, 2004-04 Scholars explore this not so recent tv trend

Reality Television Richard M. Huff, 2006-06-30 Reality programming a broad title for unscripted shows that involve non actors is really an updated version of a classic television genre that had its first successes decades before The Real World or Survivor made their premieres NBC launched Try and Do It a show in which audience members attempted to complete tasks such as whistling with a mouthful of crackers in 1949 In the 1950s Queen for a Day crowned the most down trodden of its four contestants draping her in a sable trimmed robe and granting a previously declared wish The wild success reality television has achieved of late has pushed the envelope of such programming ever further away from the genre's innocuous beginnings. The time is now ripe for a look back on how this genre has developed what it reveals about us and what has transformed it into one of the most powerful forms of entertainment on television today. Reality programming, a broad title for unscripted shows that involve non actors, is really an updated version of a classic television genre that had its first successes decades before. The Real World or Survivor made their premieres. NBC launched Try and Do It, a show in which audience members attempted to complete tasks such as whistling with a mouthful of crackers in 1949. In the 1950s Queen for a Day crowned the most down trodden of its four contestants at the end of each show, draping her in a sable trimmed robe and granting a previously declared wish. The wild success reality television has achieved of late has pushed the envelope of such programming ever further away from the genre's innocuous beginnings. The time is now ripe for a look back on how this genre has developed what it reveals about us and what has transformed it into one of the most powerful forms of entertainment on television today. Using interviews with network insiders, reality producers and other experts, Richard Huff supplies fascinating insights into the diverse content and often erratic development of reality television programming, augmenting this information with illuminating general connections between the past and present forms these shows assume. From Queen for a Day through Extreme Makeover, from Cops to Fear Factor, the genre is placed before us in this exhaustive and many sided account, an account that uncovers the foundations and the future potential of the compelling and dominating phenomenon that is reality television.

Beyond Monopoly Michela Ardizzoni, Chiara Ferrari, 2010-01-01. While Italian media industries are booming, changing and challenging audiences, the existing Anglophone literature on the subject is scarce. Beyond Monopoly fills this gap by engaging with the most recent changes and trends in Italian media.

Entertaining Entrepreneurs Daniel Horowitz, 2020-09-29. The Great Recession threatened the well being of tens of millions of Americans, dramatically weakened the working class, hollowed out the middle class and strengthened the position of the very wealthy. Against this backdrop, the hit reality show Shark Tank premiered in 2009. Featuring ambitious entrepreneurs chasing support from celebrity investors, the show offered a version of the American Dream that still seemed possible to many where a bright idea and a well honed pitch could lift a bootstrap business to new heights of success. More than a decade later, Shark Tank still airs regularly on multiple networks and its formula has sparked imitators everywhere, from elite universities to elementary school classrooms. In Entertaining Entrepreneurs, Daniel Horowitz shows how Shark Tank's version of entrepreneurship disguises and distorts the opportunities and traps of capitalism. Digging into today's cult of the entrepreneur, Horowitz charts its rise from the rubble of economic crisis and its spread as a mainstay of American culture, and he explores its flawed view of what it really takes to succeed in business. Horowitz offers more than a look at one television phenomenon. He is the perfect guide to the portrayal of entrepreneurship in business school courses, pitch competitions, popular how to books and scholarly works as well as the views of real world venture capitalists.
