

TIME

A black and white photograph of a wide city street, likely in Europe, with multi-story buildings lining the left side. A person's arm, wearing a dark sweater and a wristwatch, is in the foreground, looking down at the street. The watch has a light-colored face and a dark strap. The street is paved with cobblestones and has a crosswalk visible. In the distance, a large dome, possibly a cathedral, is visible on the right side of the street. The overall scene is a composite image, likely a collage, used as a book cover.

Time Whitechapel Documents Of Contemporary Art:

Time Amelia Groom, 2013 Time contemporary art has explored such diverse registers of temporality as wasting and waiting regression and repetition déjà vu and seriality idleness and unrealized potential non consummation and counter productivity the belated and the premature the disjointed and the out of synch all of which go against sequential time and index slips in chronological experience While theorists have proposed radical perspectives such as the anachronistic or heterochronic reading of history artists have opened up the field of time to the extent that they very notion of the contemporary is brought into question Back cover

Enduramorphosis Chelsea Coon, 2025-11-13 In this book artist Chelsea Coon unfolds the theory of enduramorphosis an emergent strangeness that arises in an endurance performance when the body is pushed to its limit and reacts

Notions of Temporalities in Artistic Practice Anamarija Batista, 2022-07-04 The reflections on historical and contemporary positions assembled here shed light on concepts of temporalities in the context of artistic practices In the 1960s and 1970s the pursuit for the situational processual and actual stirred up artistic and theoretical fields Nowadays contemporary practices expand on these subjects by exploring the notion of anachronism the impermanence of one's own corporeality together with the performative and ephemeral qualities of the sonic amongst other relevant concepts The goal of this publication is to offer a deep dive into situation specific settings and to fundamentally explore how temporality is able to initiate action and structure our perception thereby affecting our bodies our senses how we communicate and how the present moment is shaped

A Time of One's Own Catherine Grant, 2022-08-29 In A Time of One's Own Catherine Grant examines how contemporary feminist artists are turning to broad histories of feminism ranging from political organizing and artworks from the 1970s to queer art and activism in the 1990s Exploring artworks from 2002 to 2017 by artists including Sharon Hayes Mary Kelly Allyson Mitchell Deirdre Logue Lubaina Himid Pauline Boudry and Renate Lorenz Grant maps a revival of feminism that takes up the creative and political implications of forging feminist communities across time and space Grant characterizes these artists engagement with feminism as a fanish autodidactic and collective form of learning from history This fandom of feminism allows artists to build relationships with previous feminist ideas artworks and communities that reject a generational model and embrace aspects of feminism that might be seen as embarrassing queer or anachronistic Accounting for the growing interest in feminist art politics and ideas across generations Grant demonstrates that for many contemporary feminist artists the present moment can only be understood through an embodied engagement with history in which feminist pasts are reinhabited and reimagined
