Federal Student Loans Tatiana Shohov, 2004 Title IV of the Higher Education Act HEA authorises the major federal student aid programs including the student loan programs which are the largest source of aid for students In FY2000 the Federal Family Education Loan FFEL programs and the Federal Direct Student Loan DL program supported an estimated 33 1 billion in new loan volume Several types of loans are available Federal need based subsidised Stafford loans under which the government pays the interest while the borrower is in school a grace period of deferment unsubsidised Stafford loans Federal PLUS loans for parents of undergraduate students and Federal Consolidation loans Overall student loan volume has been increased in recent years from 24 billion in FY1994 to 33 billion in FY2000 The number of loans being made has increased over the same period going from 6 483 000 to 8 618 000 The average amount that individual students are borrowing in any given year has not increased as dramatically This new book examines important issues related to this cornerstone of American higher education Loan Forgiveness and Loan Repayment Programs Virgil Davidson, 2019-04 Student loan forgiveness and loan repayment programs provide borrowers a means of having all or part of their student loan debt forgiven or repaid in exchange for work or service in specific fields or professions or following a prolonged period during which their student loan debt burden is high relative to their income In both loan forgiveness and loan repayment programs borrowers typically qualify for benefits by working or serving in certain capacities for a specified period or by satisfying other program requirements over an extended term Upon qualifying for benefits some or all of a borrowers student loan debt is forgiven or paid on his or her behalf Some of these programs are intended to support goals such as providing a financial incentive to encourage individuals to enter into and or remain in a particular profession or public service One such

Series A ,1978-08 Official statement issued in conjunction with State of Wisconsin bond sales Repay As You Earn Philip G. Schrag,2001-11-30 In 1993 Congress created a student loan repayment plan intended to enable high debt graduates to accept low income public service jobs by reducing their loan payments and eventually forgiving part of their debts But this Congressional initiative only helps those with catastrophically low incomes It has failed to attract many users because as implemented through regulations of the U S Department of Education it requires payment over too long a period 25 years before forgiveness Many students go to graduate and professional schools in pursuit of careers in public service But they often must borrow 100 000 or more to finance their education Their loan repayment obligations become so high that they can no longer afford to follow their ideals and they abandon their plans to have public service careers and seek employment with corporations or firms offering high salaries The income contingent repayment plan should have appealed to would be public interest lawyers who are among the graduates with the highest debt to income ratios but the plan has failed them and Schrag explores why and how the plan should be reformed either by Congress or by the federal administration Department of Public Health V. Wiley ,2004

Federal Student Loan Repayment Assistance for Public Interest Lawyers and Other Employees of Governments and Nonprofit Organizations Philip G. Schrag,2014 In the College Cost Reduction and Access Act of 2007 Congress has created the income based repayment IBR plan for student loans through which graduates with high debts and low incomes may substantially reduce their monthly loan repayment obligations Congress has also created a public service loan forgiveness plan through which the federal government will forgive the remaining debt of borrowers who make 120 IBR or certain other payments while serving full time in public service jobs very broadly defined These programs are available to those who borrowed for graduate and professional training as well as for undergraduate education These two programs will be of great value to public interest lawyers because of their typically high debts and low incomes but they will also significantly assist social workers government employees soldiers nurses doctors teachers and many others who work in non profit organizations and government agencies This article explains why Congress created these two related programs demonstrates the magnitude of the benefits available to representative borrowers and outlines how graduates can obtain these benefits It also elaborates how even before the income based repayment plan becomes effective in 2009 public service employees may make monthly repayments that will help to qualify them for eventual loan forgiveness Finally the article discusses the need for additional legislation to enable these new programs to achieve their objectives fully     Student Loan Funds Harmon Foundation, inc,1924     Accountant Student and Accountants' Journal ,1924     Abstract of the Treasurer's Accounts for the Year ...
