The Clinical Utility of Compounded Bioidentical Hormone Therapy National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Board on Health Sciences Policy, Committee on the Clinical Utility of Treating Patients with Compounded Bioidentical Hormone Replacement Therapy, 2020-09-22

The U S Food and Drug Administration FDA has approved dozens of hormone therapy products for men and women including estrogen progesterone testosterone and related compounds These products have been reviewed for safety and efficacy and are indicated for treatment of symptoms resulting from hormonal changes associated with menopause or other endocrine based disorders In recent decades an increasing number of health care providers and patients have turned to custom formulated or compounded drug preparations as an alternative to FDA approved drug products for hormone related health concerns These compounded hormone preparations are often marketed as bioidentical or natural and are commonly referred to as compounded bioidentical hormone therapy cBHT In light of the fast growing popularity of cBHT preparations the clinical utility of these compounded preparations is a substantial public health concern for various stakeholders including medical practitioners patients health advocacy organizations and federal and state public health agencies This report examines the clinical utility and uses of cBHT drug preparations and reviews the available evidence that would support marketing claims of the safety and effectiveness of cBHT preparations It also assesses whether the available evidence suggests that these preparations have clinical utility and safety profiles warranting their clinical use and identifies patient populations that might benefit from cBHT preparations in lieu of FDA approved BHT
