The Threat Of Race Reflections On Racial Neoliberalism:

The Threat of Race David Theo Goldberg, 2011-09-09 Written by a renowned scholar of critical race theory The Threat of Race explores how the concept of race has been historically produced and how it continues to be articulated if often denied in today's world A major new study of race and racism by a renowned scholar of critical race theory Explores how the concept of race has been historically produced and how it continues to be articulated if often denied in today's world Argues that it is the neoliberal society that fuels new forms of racism Surveys race dynamics throughout various regions of the world from Western and Northern Europe South Africa and Latin America and from Israel and Palestine to the United States

The Threat of Race Reflections on Racial Neoliberalism, 2015 Race, Ethnicity and Social Theory John Solomos, 2022-07-01 Race Ethnicity and Social Theory provides a critical analysis of the main areas of scholarly research and debate about racial and ethnic relations over the past few decades The book covers substantive areas of scholarly debate in this fast changing field including race and social relations identities and the construction of the racial other feminism and race the relationship between race and nationalism antisemitism the evolution of new forms of racism race and political representation and more generally the changing debates about race and ethnicity in our global environment The book argues that there is a need for more dialogue across national and conceptual boundaries about how to develop the theoretical tools needed to understand both the historical roots of contemporary forms of racialised social and political relations and the contemporary forms through which race is made and re made A key argument that runs through the book is the need to develop conceptual frameworks that can help us to make sense of the changing forms of racial and ethnic relations in contemporary societies This means developing more dialogue across national research cultures as well as empirical research that seeks to engage with the key issues raised by contemporary theoretical debates The book will be of interest to both students wanting to develop a deeper understanding of this area of scholarship and to researchers of race ethnicity and migration working in various national and disciplinary environments Race and Hegemonic Struggle in the United States Michael G. Lacy, Mary E. Triebel, 2014-08-20 Race and Hegemonic Struggle in the United States Pop Culture Politics and Protest is a collection of essays that draws on concepts developed by Antonio Gramsci to examine the imagining of race in popular culture productions political discourses and resistance rhetoric The chapters in this volume call for renewed attention to Gramscian political thought to examine understand interpret and explain the persistent contradictions ambivalence and paradoxes in racial representations and material realities This book's contributors rely on Gramsci's ideas to explore how popular political and resistant discourses reproduce or transform our understandings of race and racism social inequalities and power relationships in the twentieth and early twenty first centuries Together the chapters confront forms of collective and cultural amnesia about race and racism suggested in the phrases post-race post-racial and post-racism while exposing the historical institutional social and political forces and constraints that make anti-racism atonement and egalitarian change so difficult to achieve Contesting Race and Citizenship Camilla Hawthorne, 2022-07-15 Contesting Race and Citizenship is an original study of Black politics and varieties of political mobilization in Italy Although there is extensive research on first generation immigrants and refugees who traveled from Africa to Italy there is little scholarship about the experiences of Black people who were born and raised in Italy Camilla Hawthorne focuses on the ways Italians of African descent have become entangled with processes of redefining the legal racial cultural and economic boundaries of Italy and by extension of Europe itself Contesting Race and Citizenship opens discussions of the so called migrant crisis by focusing on a generation of Black people who although born or raised in Italy have been thrust into the same racist xenophobic political climate as the immigrants and refugees who are arriving in Europe from the African continent Hawthorne traces not only mobilizations for national citizenship but also the more capacious transnational Black diasporic possibilities that emerge when activists confront the ethical and political limits of citizenship as a means for securing meaningful lasting racial justice possibilities that are based on shared critiques of the racial state and shared histories of racial capitalism and colonialism Race, Culture and Media Anamik Saha, 2021-03-24 How do media make race How do legacies of empire shape our understandings of race and media How does racism structure the media industries Is the internet an inherently white space Understanding the relationship between race culture and media has never been more important From the demonisation of Muslims to rampant new forms of racism on digital platforms media are central to understanding how race is both constructed and experienced in everyday life Yet media are key to resisting racism too While they can silence and stereotype us they can also enable us to cut across difference to contest and mobilise and to create genuine community Race Culture and Media is a critical impassioned and accessible exploration of this complex relationship Anamik Saha outlines the theories concepts and research you need to know in order to make sense of race culture and media today challenging you to move beyond simplistic notions of diversity to really engage with issues of both power and participation It is essential reading for students and researchers across media communication and cultural studies Dr Anamik Saha is Senior Lecturer in Media and Communications at Goldsmiths University of London where he convenes the MA Race Media and Social Justice Career Guidance for Emancipation Tristram Hooley, Ronald Sultana, Rie Thomsen, 2018-12-21 This edited collection explores ways in which social justice can be integrated into career guidance practice Chapter authors propose models and practices which can contribute to struggles for social justice and consider how career guidance can play a role in these struggles They explore policy and practice in the light of critical social theory both critiquing career guidance and opening up new possibilities for the field The volume moves the discipline away from its overwhelming reliance on psychology in favor of theoretically pluralistic approaches informed by critical thinking in a range of disciplines It seeks to expand the possibilities that are available to career guidance practitioners and researchers to support the growth of human flourishing and solidarity Migrants and Race in the US Philip Kretsedemas, 2013-10-23 This book explains how migrants can be viewed as racial others not just because they are nonwhite but because they are racially alien This way of seeing makes it possible to distinguish migrants from a set of racial categories that are presumed to be indigenous to the nation In the US these indigenous racial categories are usually defined in terms of white and black Kretsedemas explores how this kind of racialization puts migrants in a quandary leading them to be simultaneously raced and situated outside of race Although the book focuses on the situation of migrants in the US it builds on theories of migrants and race that extend beyond the US and makes a point of criticizing nation centered explanations of race and racism These arguments point toward the emergence of a new field visibility that has transformed the racial meaning of nativity migration and migrant ethnicity It also situates these changing views of migrants in a broader historical perspective than prior theory explaining how they have been shaped by a changing relationship between race and territory that has been unfolding for several hundred years and which crystallizes in the late colonial era

When Stereotype Meets Prejudice Timofey Agarin, 2014 Antiziganism is a widespread phenomenon in all European societies Poor or rich postcommunist or traditional North or South with lean or thick welfare systems all European societies demonstrate antiziganist prejudice All across Europe Romanis are among the poorest most destitute and most excluded communities Widespread prejudice and stereotypical representations of Romani individuals limit their chances for participation in democratic decision making processes and their access to services Unable to counteract majority stereotypes systematically more often than not they remain on the fringes of society This edited volume asks where these stereotypes and prejudices come from why they are ubiquitous to all societies and how pertinent their impact on antiziganist attitudes found in European societies really is

Breaking Up Britain Mark Perryman, 2009 May 2009 will be the tenth anniversary of the first elections to the Scottish Parliament and Welsh Assembly This was the beginning of a decade of change which now includes the restoration of powers to Stormont that is showing every sign of being an irreversible process Breaking Up Britain is a unique collection of English Scottish Welsh and Irish contributors featuring key political activists from the nationalist parties commentators and campaigners academics and journalists Each writer explores the change that the break up demands in their own nation but also discusses its impact upon the whole This dialogue of differences is essential reading for anyone interested in the shape of politics and culture after a Union This brilliant book helps us understand what Scots Welsh Irish and English neighbours freed from an unhappy Union might look like Billy Bragg
