Multiagency Collaboration Amir Khorram-Manesh,Frederick M Burkle,2020-12-11 The successful management of emergencies and public health crises depends on adequate measures being implemented at all levels of the emergency chain of action from policy makers to the general population It starts with appropriate risk assessment prevention and mitigation and continues to prehospital and hospital care recovery and evaluation All levels of action require well thought out emergency management plans and routines based on established command and control identified safety issues functional communication well documented triage and treatment policies and available logistics All these characteristics are capabilities that should be developed and trained particularly when diverse agencies are involved In addition to institutional responses a robust community based disaster response system can effectively mitigate and respond to all emergencies A well balanced response is largely dependent on local resources and regional responding agencies that all too often train and operate within silos with an absence of interagency cooperation The importance of this book issue is its commitment to all parts of emergency and public health crisis management from a multiagency perspective It aims to discuss lessons learned and emerging risks introduce new ideas about flexible surge capacity and show the way it can practice multiagency collaboration both the black letter law and how it operates in practice In a field as complex as this this clarity is key it allows lawyers political scientists and policymakers to truly engage with the challenges sea migration poses today Report Nevada.
