Didn't Teach Me about Money Daniella Dennis, MD, 2025-08-05 Becoming a doctor is expensive. From the moment you start applying to schools the costs pile up and they don't stop. That's what inspired me to write this book to offer the kind of personal finance advice I wish someone had given me back when I was a pre med student. This is the book I wish someone had handed to Daniella just a heads up on what to look out for and a dose of realness about the financial side of this journey. I'm not a financial advisor, CPA or attorney. I'm just a doctor in training sharing my story, the lessons I've learned and the financial truths I've picked up along the way. My hope is that by being transparent about my journey you'll be able to avoid some of the mistakes I made and feel a little less alone in yours. Business Ethics Denis Collins, Patricia

Repay As You Earn Philip G. Schrag,2001-11-30 In 1993 Congress created a student loan repayment plan intended to enable high debt graduates to accept low income public service jobs by reducing their loan payments and eventually forgiving part of their debts But this Congressional initiative only helps those with catastrophically low incomes It has failed to attract many users because as implemented through regulations of the U S Department of Education it requires payment over too long a period 25 years before forgiveness Many students go to graduate and professional schools in pursuit of careers in public service But they often must borrow 100 000 or more to finance their education Their loan repayment obligations become so high that they can no longer afford to follow their ideals and they abandon their plans to have public service careers and seek employment with corporations or firms offering high salaries The income contingent repayment plan should have appealed to would be public interest lawyers who are among the graduates with the highest debt to income ratios but the plan has failed them and Schrag explores why and how the plan should be reformed either by Congress or by the federal administration     Federal Student Loan Repayment Program :: United States.
