Systems Prospects The Next Ten Years Of Systems Research:

Systems Prospects Robert L. Flood, Michael C. Jackson, Paul Keys, 2012-12-06 Systems Prospects is a record of the papers presented at the first conference organised by the United Kingdom Systems Society UKSS held at Thwaite Hall Hull University UK on the dates 12th 15th July 1988 The UKSS originally came together in 1978 as the Barford Group the first meetings were held in the town of Barford comprising academics from the four institutions that incorporated departments which primarily were concerned with developing the theory and practice of so called systems science namely Aston University City University Lancaster University and the Open University The meetings of the Barford Group were deemed to be successful so much so that a decision was made to widen its horizons to incorporate more generally those of the United Kingdom systems community a diffuse number of academics and practitioners hence the title UKSS The society ten years later is extant and has achieved new levels of success in the last few years in terms of rising membership and international reputation The membership is now drawn from a wide variety of academic and commercial and industrial organisations and from most reaches of the nation There is also an international contingent in the membership It is right that there should be such diversity since the UKSS is founded on the notion of equality of creed sex race class and so on This community is glued together by the Society's own publication Systemist as well as through workshops and now this conference Systems

Guide to Systems Practice Frank Stowell, Christine Welch, 2012-05-24 This book is an ideal resource on the subject of systems practice for busy managers whose time is scarce It provides a rapid introduction to straightforward yet powerful ideas that enable users to address real world problems Systems theory and practice is predominantly a framework for thinking about the World in which holistic views are maintained In this respect it contrasts with some familiar techniques of management science in which problem situations are broken down into their constituent parts with resultant loss of coherence Power,

Ideology, and Control John C. Oliga, 2007-08-20 One of the great challenges we face today is coming to grips with forces of power in both theoretical and methodological terms in a way that prepares us for action action that is not totally subject to existing forces The literature has some excellent theoretical accounts of power but these say little about what we should do Most often they are abstract and out of reach of all but a select few In this book however we have a clear cut account of power ideology and control that paves the way for practised minded people to make a genuine attempt at tackling issues of power on both organizational and societal levels John C Oliga suggests a division between what he calls objectivist subjectivist and relational perspectives With objectivism he refers to theories that focus on power as capacities located in social structures These tend to be either synergistic e.g. Parsonian collective or conflictual e.g. Marxian conflictual view theoretical orientations With subjectivism he discusses theories that focus on power possessed by agents With relational approaches he places theories that conceive power as a property of interaction among social forces

Systems Theory and Practice in the Knowledge Age Gillian Ragsdell, Daune West, Jennifer Wilby, 2012-12-06 Welcome to the proceedings of the Seventh International Conference of the UK Systems Society being held at York University United Kingdom from July 7th to 10th 2002 It is a pleasure to be able to share with you this collection of papers that have been contributed by systems thinkers from around the world As with previous UKSS conferences the aim of this conference is to encourage debate and promote development of pertinent issues in systems theory and practice In current times where the focus has moved from information to knowledge and where knowledge management of everyday speak it seemed fitting to knowledge assets and so on have become part offer a conference title of Systems Theory and Practice in the Knowledge Age In keeping with another tradition of previous conferences the UKSS Conference 2002 Committee decided to compile a collection of delegates papers before the event as a platform from which to launch discussions in York Ideas presented in the following papers will undoubtedly be developed during the dialogue generated at the conference and new papers will emerge In his abstract for his plenary at this conference Professor Peter Checkland throws down the gauntlet to systems thinking and its relevance in the knowledge age with the following statement 30 Years In The Systems Movement Disappointments I Have Known and Hopes or the Future Springing from a lunchtime conversation at an American University the Systems Movement is now nearly 50 years old

Systems for Sustainability Frank A. Stowell, Ray L. Ison, Rosalind Armson, Jacky Holloway, Sue Jackson, Steve McRobb, 2013-11-11 The term sustainability has entered the lexicon of many academic disciplines and fields of professional practice but to date does not appear to have been seriously considered within the systems community unless perhaps under other guises Within the wider community there is no consensus around what sustainability means with some authors identifying 70 to 100 definitions of the term Some see sustainability as the precise and quantifiable outcomes of biological systems whilst others see it in terms of processes relevant to personal and organizational change with the potential to effect changes in our relationships with our environments Internationally it has been increasingly used in relation to the term sustainable development a term popularised by the Brundland Commission of definitions report in 1987 entitled Our Common Future Despite this diversity and polarised perception on its utility unlike many other popular terms it has not had its time and subsided quietly from our language It is therefore timely for the systems community to explore the relationship between systems and sustainability in a range of contexts Participants in this the 5th International Conference of the United Kingdom Systems Society UKSS have been invited to reflect critically on the contribution of systems thinking and action to sustainability to the sustainability of personal relationships the organizations in which live and work and our natural environment
