Transforming Images Transforming Images:

Transforming Images Rebecca Coleman, 2015-01-28 Contemporary social and cultural life is increasingly organised around a logic of self transformation where changing the body is seen as key Transforming Images examines how the future functions within this transformative logic to indicate the potential of a materially better time The book explores the crucial role that images have in organising an imperative for transformation and in making possible or not the materialisation of a better future Coleman asks the questions which futures are appealing and to whom How do images tap into and reproduce wider social and cultural processes of inequality Drawing on the recent turns to affect and emotion and to understanding life in terms of vitality intensity and liveness in social and cultural theory the book develops a framework for understanding images as felt and lived out Analysing different screens across popular culture the screens of shopping makeover television programmes online dieting plans and government health campaigns it traces how images of self transformation bring the future into the present and affectively draw in some bodies more than others Transforming Images will be of interest to students and scholars working in sociology media studies cultural studies and gender studies

Strip-Method for Image and Signal Transformation Leonid A. Mironovsky, Valery A. Slaev, 2011-11-30 This work deals with the matrix methods of continuous signal and image processing according to which strip transformation is used The authors suggest ways to solve a problem of evaluating potential noise immunity and synthesis of an optimal filter for the case of pulse noises of applying the two dimensional strip transformation for storage and noise immune transmission of images The strip transformation of images is illustrated by examples and classes of images invariant relative to symmetrical orthogonal transformations The monograph is intended for scientists and specialists whose activities are connected with computer signals and images processing instrumentation and metrology It can also be used by undergraduates as well as by post graduates for studying computer methods of signal and image processing
