Teaching Language During Classic Reprint:

Teaching the People's Language (Classic Reprint) Paul Witty, 2018-03-06 Excerpt from Teaching the People's Language The basic reading skills which are developed during the first few years of school are clearly inadequate to meet present day demands for more complex reading abilities. A program of English which concentrates on the elimination of errors in usage and punctuation without regard for radio and motion picture messages and for accounts in daily papers is as futile as King Canute's orders in the face of the tide. The teaching of reading and of English must aim to improve and foster communication and must make effective use of the varied means through which communication takes place. Who is to be responsible if we are to have a language program in America commensurate with our opportunity and our necessity? The National Council of Teachers of English has stoutly emphasized discussion of controversial questions wide reading introduction to international literature teaching in terms of individual differences and study of the nature of language. Despite this effort there is an overwhelming amount of teaching today which is far removed from the needs we have described and which by a false emphasis is actually harmful. The following suggestions are advanced by the writers as practical steps in carrying forward a program to improve language instruction.

The Method of Teaching Language in the Primary Grades (Classic Reprint) Effie Belle McFadden, 2015-07-19

Excerpt from The Method of Teaching Language in the Primary Grades The series of lessons in this Bulletin is the outcome of an attempt to make certain language forms matters of habit that is to so fix them that when the necessity for their use arises the child need not go over in his mind any definition previously learned nor think of any rule by which he could choose the correct form to be used The general idea has been to get the attention upon the form first and gradually to lead the child to the place where the subject matter only is in mind The devices given are those used by the student teachers in the Training Department of the San Francisco State Normal School They are by no means original having been taken from many sources and worked over by the teachers from whose reports they have been taken for this Bulletin The method used is to bring the proper setting before the child either actually or in imagination The teacher gives the proper form to be used and the child imitates her by using the form The best results will come if the attention of the child is exclusively upon the form we wish to teach him without too much paraphernalia to divide that attention To illustrate The child is to be taught to use the form I saw in telling about something he has seen before The teacher produces the proper conditions by walking to the window looking out at some object then returning to her desk and saying I saw a man The child then imitates her Next instead of actually reproducing the condition the teacher does so in imagination which is one step in advance On my way to school this morning I saw a pretty flower Tell me what you saw The times over or spiral method as it is usually called is found to be very effective The first time over consists entirely of oral work before the children master their pens or crayon well enough to give their attention to what they are writing rather than to the form of the letters Writing the sentences is introduced the second time over the children copying first afterwards doing it from dictation and finally making up their own sentences At the end of every series will be found devices for review The review lessons should begin every recitation and form the greater part of it Take time for review whether anything is given in advance or not This work would be improved if the devices for review were at the beginning of each day's exercise As no two classes are ever able to cover the same amount of work this was found impossible The teacher may select one or more devices from the review work to begin each day's lesson About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works growing library of Arabic language learning materials published by Georgetown University Press The Art of Teaching and Studying Languages \(Classic Reprint\) Francois Gouin, 2015-08-09 Excerpt from The Art of Teaching and Studying Languages Mankind has long passed from the stage in which speech is used for the mere expression of physical facts and desires to that in which language is employed as the highest tool within the grasp to paint the pictures of poetic imagination and sway a world wide audience to noble thoughts and deeds Not only to satisfy the necessities of travellers in far countries has the study of language been ever desirable but to penetrate the spirit and genius of Homer Virgil Shakespeare Goethe Hugo Dante it has become to the cultured of every country a necessity for the full gift of a liberal education Since language became literature the necessity for the mastery over other tongues than his own has forced the attention of student and of professor to the problem of the study of languages and the great intellectual value of a complete and logical system for the mastery of tongues if such could be found is so apparent that the greatest honour has always been awarded to discoverers in this region which is still felt however to be to a large extent unexplored or at least unconquered The world has this year seen a magnificent celebration of the grand services to the cause of education rendered by Comenius In spite of this we are still far from having definitely adopted in our school and college practice the now acknowledged principles perceived by Comenius that education must be organic and not mechanical that language teaching modern and classic should proceed by dealing with things and not with words and grammatical abstractions and that before all else education should have direct bearing upon actual life About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Modern Language Teaching, Vol. 3 \(Classic Reprint\) Modern Language
