Race, Reason, and Massive Resistance David John Mays,2008 These private writings by a prominent white southern lawyer offer insight into his state s embrace of massive white resistance following the 1954 Brown v Board of Education ruling David J Mays of Richmond Virginia was a highly regarded attorney a Pulitzer Prize winning biographer and a member of his city s political and social elite He was also a diarist for most of his adult life This volume comprises diary excerpts from the years 1954 to 1959 For much of this time Mays was counsel to the commission chaired by state senator Garland Gray that was charged with formulating Virginia s response to federal mandates concerning the integration of public schools Later Mays was involved in litigation triggered by that response Mays chronicled the state s bitter and divisive shift away from the Gray Commission s proposal that school integration questions be settled at the local level Instead Virginia s arch segregationists led by U S senator Harry F Byrd championed a monolithic defiance of integration at the highest state and federal levels Many leading Virginians of the time appear in Mays s diary along with details of their roles in the battle against desegregation as it was fought in the media courts polls and government back rooms Mays s own racial attitudes were hardly progressive yet his temperament and legal training put a relatively moderate public face on them As James R Sweeney notes Mays s differences with extremists were about means more than ends about not the morality of Jim Crow but the best tactics for defending it

A Most Tolerant Little Town Rachel Louise Martin,2024-07-23 An intimate portrait of a small Southern town living through tumultuous times this propulsive piece of forgotten civil rights history about the first school to attempt court ordered desegregation in the wake of Brown v Board will forever change how you think of the end of racial segregation in America In graduate school Rachel Martin volunteered with a Southern oral history project One day she was sent to a small town in Tennessee in the foothills of the Appalachians where locals wanted to build a museum to commemorate the events of August 1956 when Clinton High School became the first school in the former Confederacy to undergo court mandated desegregation After recording a dozen interviews Rachel asked the museum s curator why everyone she d been told to gather stories from was white Weren t there any Black residents of Clinton who remembered this history A few hours later she got a call from the head of the oral history project the town of Clinton didn t want her help anymore For years Rachel Martin wondered what it was the white residents of Clinton didn t want remembered So she went back eventually interviewing sixty residents including the surviving Black students who d desegregated Clinton High to piece together what happened back in 1956 the death threats and beatings picket lines and cross burnings neighbors turned on neighbors and preachers for the first time at a loss for words The national guard had rushed to town followed by national journalists like

Edward Murrow and even evangelist Billy Graham And still tensions continued to rise until white supremacists bombed the school In A Most Tolerant Little Town Rachel Martin weaves together a dozen disparate perspectives in an intimate and yet kaleidoscopic portrait of a small town living through a tumultuous turning point for America The result is a propulsive piece of forgotten civil rights history that reads like a ticking time bomb and illuminates the devastating costs of being on the frontlines of social change You may have never before heard of Clinton but you won't be forgetting the town anytime soon
