Women in Nanotechnology Pamela M. Norris, Lisa E. Friedersdorf, 2019-07-16 This book celebrates a few examples of the many women who have advanced the field of nanotechnology. The book opens with an overview of the field, illuminating how nanotechnology is opening the door to manipulating matter on a scale one billionth of a meter. Then the use of nanotechnology to improve science and scientific literacy is discussed and strategies for incorporating nanotechnology in K-12 education are presented. Next, an array of female scientists provide technical descriptions of how their work is impacting their respective areas. Topics include applications in the energy, electronics, water, communication and health care sectors among others. The book closes with a historical perspective on the U.S. National Nanotechnology Initiative and future prospects for nanotechnology. The relationship between plants and their surroundings, especially those plant-microbe interactions with a beneficial output, remain the center of considerable attention Plants depend on their microbiomes for multifarious life supporting activities including nutrient acquisition and augmentation of their defense systems against biotic and abiotic stresses The interactions between a plant and its microbiome are highly complex and dynamic in nature The plant immune system in particular is thought to have a profound impact in determining the plant microbiome structure and diversity Characterizing the plant microbiome and its function could be applied for better crop design and management especially in resource limited environments and to protect plants from intruding pathogens Therefore a deep understanding of the interrelationships of the soil plant microorganism system is essential for improving the efficacy and potential applications of plant growth promoting inocula for achieving sustainable food security and development Recent studies of plant growth promoting rhizobacteria show that cocktails of useful bacteria in the form of synthetic communities are better than single inoculants which face competition from other microorganisms and could be killed or suppressed under sub optimal conditions Microbial activity should also be considered in the construction of microbial co inoculants Understanding plant microbe interactions and mechanisms will also help in the development of smart microbial fertilizer formulation and application in the future This Research Topic welcomes the following subtopics Interactomics for sustainable agriculture studies using novel combinatorial approaches employing computational expertise to analyze the data from genomics transcriptomics metabolomics and proteomics based studies leading to identification of targets and validating wet lab experiments with molecular evidence for resolving issues in agriculture and sustainability Please note that purely descriptive sequencing studies will not be considered Plant microbiome studies deciphering the structure and composition of complex microbial communities associated directly or indirectly with the plant i e endophytic epiphytic and rhizospheric communities and their significance Topic Editors Alok Kumar Srivastava and Prem Lal Kashyap have created commercial products related to the Topic All other topic editors declare no competing interests with regard to the Research Topic subject
