Mindful Morning Routine

My Mourning Routine

When my mother died, I had a "Mourning Routine" that consisted of mourning clothes, death candles lit on the day, meals that my family ate (which is usually just my daily staples), and a few other things that I could do daily without my mother being there.

I usually wore something "funereal" in a sense that I kept the house on the outside with no pictures for the day, but I kept a small table with my personal things on it. I'd avoid pictures in my sitting and dining rooms.

The routine also always consisted of a cup of coffee every morning and a glass of wine, which I usually ate with. I'd usually keep my mourning clothes on, making sure of personal things before placing a structured cloth on the day.

These small mourning steps made a difference of mourning and mourning in my life.
